ABSTRACT

Designed for use by the reference librarian in searching for congressional subcommittee publications with incomplete bibliographic information and/or too recent to be listed in the CIS Index or the Monthly Catalog, this index consists of two lists. The first is an alphabetical listing by name of each subcommittee and includes the name of the parent committee and the CIS (Congressional Information Service) number assigned to that committee. The second list, which is arranged alphabetically by the name of the parent committee, indicates whether it is a House, Senate, or joint committee, lists the names of its subcommittees, and provides both the CIS and SuDocs (Superintendent of Documents Classification System) numbers. This index is based on information available for the 96th Congress, 1st session, 1979. (FM)

Foreword

In standard bibliographic format, and the Superintendent of Documents Classification System (SuDocs), congressional subcommittee publications, i. e. hearings and prints, are grouped under their parent committee. The main entry of these publications is usually under the parent committee, and they are classified under the SuDocs number assigned to that body. Having often experienced a reference inquiry about a recent congressional publication which is identified only by the subcommittee name and subject, or vaguely by title of the publication, we are often frustrated by the lack of bibliographic tools needed to locate current information. The publication may already be in the depository collection; however, it is too current to be included either in CIS Index or Monthly Catalog. If the parent committee's name is easily identified, a SuDocs number assigned to it may be found. This allows us to browse around the shelves (or a shelf list) using a key word of the subject or title as a clue, or, in some committees which use serial numbers to distinguish each publication, under the current congressional year and session. On many occasions, we produced the current publication in this manner.

In trying to identify the parent committee from a subcommittee name, we realized that all the reference tools we have, including Congressional Directory, are lacking in this type of index.

The Congressional Subcommittee Index, a 3 x 5 card file, was, therefore, prepared as an in-house reference tool of our Department. It is divided into two parts: Part I, Index from Subcommittee to Main Committee of the U. S. Congress, and alphabetical table of subcommittee names with reference to parent committee name (Pages 1-14), and; Part II, List of Committees and Subcommittees of the 96th Congress, an alphabetical table of congressional committees of House, Senate and joint committees with SuDocs number and CIS classification number assigned to each body (Pages 15-26). The standing committees are noted by asterisks in this part. The Congressional Subcommittee Index is based on information available for the 96th Congress. It is, of course, necessary to revise this Index every congressional year in order to keep it current, since each parent committee may revise its subcommittee structure as well as the subcommittee names according to the need in each congressional year.

Encouraged by several documents librarians in Nassau and Suffolk Counties on Long Island, New York, with whom I work closely through the Government Information Committee of the Long Island Library Resources Council, I decided to produce our in-house reference tool in a printed form. I welcome any comments and criticism of this Index. My thanks to Miss Sue Grayson, our secretary, for her typing of this final copy.
